

STEVE FREITAG

vCIO

After working at large, international companies as well as a 15-person consulting firm, Steven Freitag understands businesses of all sizes.

"There are obviously unique challenges to every business, but regardless of size or industry, there will be some overlap too," said Steven. "For example, security threats like ransomware affect every type and size of business. But regardless of any overlap, our customized solutions take into account each of our client's unique business challenges and goals."

Steven has had over 10 years of IT experience, but one of his most important assets is his ability to communicate effectively to clients. Customer service is Steven's highest priority, and he is available to his clients whenever they need him, whether it be a quick over-the-phone question or an in-person meeting to gauge their process and figure out next steps.

"The role of the vCIO is something that really stands out for EleviTy," said Steven. "No other company is going to offer as high-quality customer service and have someone consistently go into the client's business and offer ongoing assistance in custom strategies."

"I help clients build a technology roadmap, so we can help them accomplish their business goals."
